This talk will focus on the integration of quantitative skills into a first year art history seminar. In this course, we explore the connections between visual art and mathematics through the study of proportion, geometry, symmetry, and perspective. We also look at how these concepts have changed over time and their nuances among different cultures. (Received September 15, 2014)