University of Maine is a rural university and majority students are under prepared for college level math courses. Structure of Math is a course designed for students in the Elementary Education major. We found using IBL method for such a group of students to be challenging. We would like to share my experience on using IBL method in this course for a group of students with a poor prior math background. (Received September 16, 2014)